Dear Sirs,

New electoral boundaries should be set on the following basis:

1. There should be no increase in the number of constituencies;
2. The population difference between constituencies should be no more than +/- 5% from the average population figure;
3. There should be no exceptions to the maximum difference mentioned in 2. above;
4. The commission should not engage in gerrymandering for the benefit of any party or particular sector of the population!

Yours truly,
Paul Slade
