I feel a review of electoral boundaries is an excellent confirmation of population shifts, and if done with an eye to making the election process more equitable will confirm trust by the general voting population in Alberta.

I am strongly opposed to the use of the review to merely add MLA's to an already bloated Legislature. The number of people being represented does not necessarily reflect activity by any MLA, and with the exception of photo-ops, most MLA's are MIA, unless they are Ministers.

Canadians as a whole are over-governed now, what with Aldermen, MLA's, MP's and Senators with the endless administration support for each position. It staggers my mind at the cost of government at the present time without adding anymore MLA's that are keen to start up new departments to spend our money.

Thank you for your time and put me down as a vote for fewer MLA's and less government.
